Greenbrier County Courthouse (WVA-115)

Structure

NE corner Randolph and Market Sts. Brick (Flemish bond), rectangular (three-bay facade), two stories with mezzanine level, gable roof, monumental Tuscan portico with fanlight in pediment, open octagonal domed cupola. Built 1837, Wm. Dunn, builder. Two-story wings altered and lengthened, and interior altered 1938. In addition to serving as the county courthouse, the building was the location of sessions of the Virginia State Supreme Court of Appeals. One of two of the State's remaining ante-bellum court houses of Jeffersonian inspiration still in use. 2 ext. photos (1974)
